

The prairie was planted in 2002, initially to protect the water quality of our Upper Iowa River.

At the same time the Butterfly Garden was created to introduce visitors to the native plants of the prairie, to provide a place of enjoyment, and to help preserve our native butterflies who through the ages have required these specific plants. The garden invites us to consider this question: Can we pass on what we have inherited?

To encourage butterflies to visit your home garden, you will want to supply their needs, which are:

1. A sunny location
2. Moisture, such as a bucket of wet sand with a perch
3. Rocks, which serve as a warming place
4. Flowers blooming throughout the season to provide nectar for the adults
5. Food plants for the caterpillars
6. Shelter from the prevailing winds
7. Protection from hungry birds

We invite you to fully experience the garden by taking a walking tour. This brochure shows you where the plants are growing and includes their common and scientific names. Some plants have more than one common name.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

These books are most helpful. They can be found in the Decorah Public Library or at local book stores:

BUTTERFLY GARDENING by the Xerxes Society and the Smithsonian

BUTTERFLIES OF IOWA by Schlicht and Downey

FOUR WINGS AND A PRAYER by Halpern (about the fall migration of the Monarch)
